MONTEREY PENINSULA'S ILLUSTRATED·WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

VOL. 8, NO. 18 CARMEL, CALIFORNIA, AUGUST 15, 1952 TEN CENTS

A COAST COVE

-Spectator Notes-

The week's surest bet . . . If the city doesn't buy the M. J. Murphy property at the corner of Ocean and Junipero, then some chain-store outfit will.

- - - - - - - - - - -

Mayor Horace Lyon was telephoned this week and requested to "pose with a model." He lighted up and said "Yes, of course." Turned out that the model he posed with was one of the facades of the new Playhouse.

- - - - - - - - - - -

Tourist overheard passing L'Arc de Triomphe shop on Dolores street and looking at the big photograph of the arch -- "My, what an unusual fireplace."

- - - - - - - - - - -

Pete Gilman, the local daily's man-about-town, took a few days off last week for a flying visit to La Paz, Mexico. While there he acquired a notable sun tan and landed three marlin. (Three others got away.)

- - - - - - - - - - -

Street Superintendent Bill Askew has caught the tree-saving spirit of the new council. When asked at this week's council meeting what could be done to make a No Parking sign more noticeable, Bill replied, "We can't trim that little branch, we'll have to move the sign."

- - - - - - - - - - -

That puzzled look you see on the faces of some tourists may be accounted for thus -- they think the little black track the television cable leaves in the street is Carmel's own Path of History, similar but less obtrusive than Monterey's orange line.

- - - - - - - - - - -

Audre Graft is back in town after her trip East driving a handsome new convertible which she picked up in Detroit.

- - - - - - - - - - -

Mills Hoffman, impressario of the Redwood Gardens, is lately specializing in versatile entertainers. Consuelo Gonzales, who sang opera in the Forest Theater a few years back, combined serious singing with light comedy. Mill's current performer, Nino Milo, is one of those package deals who sings, impersonates, does comic routines, MCs, and has a good time generally.

- - - - - - - - - - -

The new Highway 1 double lines are confusing to say the least. At the Carpenter street intersection there are two pairs of them, and the corner, always confusing and quite dangerous, has become more of both.

- - - - - - - - - - -

William T. Moore, long-time engineer with the Del Monte Properties Company, has been named a vice president by the company's directors. Moore joined the Pacific Improvement Company, predecessor of the present company, 46 years ago. He will serve as chief of the engineering department and head of the Pacific Grove Division of Del Monte. Moore succeeds the late Charles S. Olmsted.

SCENIC DRIVE PROJECT TO BE UNDERTAKEN

Scenic Drive between Ocean and 8th is due to be widened and improved soon. The council this week called for bids on the project after revised cost estimates are worked out.

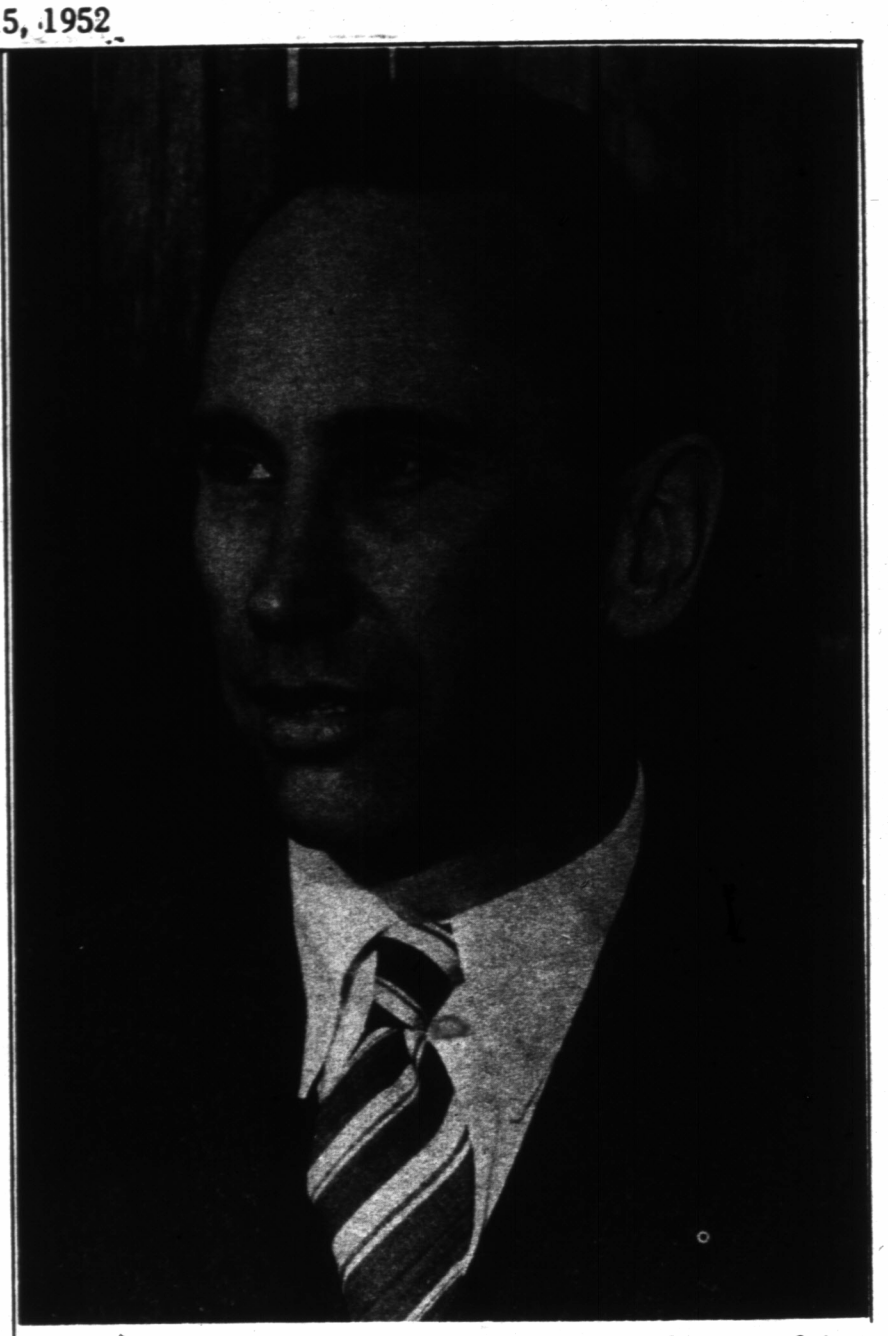
The work on Scenic is the major section of a three-part street improvement program originally worked out last year. Money for the work comes from the state's construction fund and gas tax money. The preliminary estimates showed the work would cost about $26,000.

The project includes retopping all of Scenic Drive and improving the drainage over the entire length. Ocean avenue from San Antonio to Scenic will be improved. And Third avenue from Junipero to Torres will also be improved, the section now being a part of the truck route.

The major part of the project is the widening and draining of Scenic between Ocean and 8th. This section has long been a traffic bottleneck and the lack of drainage facilities has caused property damage on the lower side. The council decided that the big cypress in the middle of the block should be left in place, however.

The improvement of Ocean avenue from Scenic to the beach, including the turnaround, has been included in the current year's street improvement plans. It is probable that all the work will be done at the same time.

The improvement of Scenic will not affect the cypress trees along the roadway. All will be left in place and the gutters put around them where they lie in the road.



S. FLETCHER DUTTON, former resident of Carmel Highlands, is returning to the Monterey Peninsula soon to become business manager of the Del Monte School for Boys at Pebble Beach. The latter has acquired the properties of the Douglas Schools and will start operations in the Fall. Dutton, his wife, and two children will live in their new home in the Monterey Peninsula Country Club tract.

OF SPECIAL INTEREST to all who have enjoyed the Golden Bough Playhouse over the years is the news that lighting equipment of most recent design is to be installed in the new Playhouse, assuring to future plays the same unusual and distinctive effects that marked the Kuster directed productions of the past.

A first prize of $500 was awarded to Donald Teague of Carmel this week by the State Fair Arts and Crafts Show. Teague's entry, a water-color, is named "Shipyard Singapore," and will be on display at Sacramento in the show from August 28 through September 7.

Helen Beecher of Carmel placed third in the clothing yardage fabric weaving category, and won a prize of $25.

Two Carmelites received honorable mentions, J.N. Swanson and Ruth Tait. Both have entries in the conservative oil painting contest.

CARMEL, MONTEREY SPLIT ART HONORS AT FAIR

Rollin Pickford Jr. of the Carmel Art Association Gallery took the blue ribbon in the Professional Conservative Division with another watercolor, "Point Pinos Lighthouse."

Second and third in the Modern class were Zev of Monterey with an oil painting called "You Gotta Pay To Get In," and Sidney Tillim of Carmel Valley with another oil painting called "Hebrew Theme."

The runners up in the Conservative Class were a water-color called "House" by Jay Hannah, Jr. of Carmel, and an oil painting, "Still Life," by Dorothea D. Roberts of Carmel.

There were 31 oil paintings and 20 watercolors judged in the Conservative class, and 16 oils and 9 watercolors in the Modern division.

80 CHORISTERS 18 NEW SONGS, IN "THAT'S THE TICKET"

Eighty young chorus liners form the backbone of this year's teen-age musical comedy, "That's The Ticket," running Aug. 28-31 at Carmel's Forest Theater. They are a really remarkable phenomenon, in which you must in fairness include their able director, David Eldridge, and his musical co-director, Jimmy Griffen.

The monumental task of learning--and teaching--fourteen complete dance routines in a trifle over a month of rehearsal is better appreciated when the almost completely amateur standing of the cast is considered. Broadway dance directors putting on a fullfledged musical start off at first base with a chorus group well versed in the basic dance steps of which most routines are mainly an elaboration.

Starting from scratch is the tough part; and, if there wasn't so much natural talent in young limbs and musculature, it would be almost impossible.

Actually, this year's cast includes many veterans of last year's sister musical "This Is It," written also by this year's stellar young writing team of Adams-Masten-Monahan-- who, everyone around here hopes, may become a hyphenated success story like Rogers-Hammerstein and others. "This Is It" was a kindergarten, however, the kids are finding out. Even the veterans of last year are conscious of their amateur standing in the face of the complicated routines director Eldridge has thrown at them the past weeks.

Director David Eldridge is a capable director and a shrewd handler of amateurs. And it is a real sight to see him whip his untrained and unwieldy mob of young people into precise formations. He uses both the soft glove of praise and the lash of sarcasm freely and with acute judgement. The kids like and respect his firm handling and seldom get out of line except for occasional flashes of horseplay and giggles. At these times he is likely to stop the show and shout, "Look you people! You can't kid and play. You're going on that stage looking professional, or you're not going on. Now get busy!" And he means exactly that.

Probably this is one of the things that makes the kids work their heads off. They realize that David actually expects them to put on a professional appearance. This is excellent for morale. It's a high goal to shoot at.

David Eldridge has been a fortunate choice of director, proved by the polished performance of last year's success. Also, where the talented young composers occasionally falter through inexperience, Eldridge comes through with advice backed by seasons on the New York stage and years of acting and directing. In Chicago he directed for the Children's Civic Theater, acted and directed professionally in the famed Goodman Theater there, produced musical comedies for the Temple Sholom, largest Jewish group in Chicago, and also directed professional and amateur shows in Southern California. His local reputation as a director is, of course, enviable.

Co-director Jimmy Griffin, who directs the choral work for the show, also brings along a professional touch and extensive musical background. Griffin, who plays a singing lead in the show, lists professional musical comedy work and choir experience with the famed Westminster Choir of Westminster College, Princeton, New Jersey, where he took a Bachelor of Music degree. He has also done choral work under musical figures like Stokowski and Toscanini. Concert tours, recording, light opera, and directing add to an impressive show of musical ability.

For "That's the Ticket's" authors -- Don Adams, music; Ric Masten, lyrics; Mike Monahan, book -- these Carmel productions are springboards to Broadway, they hope. It wouldn't be surprising if the exciting taste of show life should turn a few heads in the chorus line in the same direction.

FISHERMEN'S FESTIVAL PARADE PLANNED

The Fishermen's Festival's giant street parade will be held Sunday, September 7, at 2:30 p.m. The parade will start at New Monterey and proceed up Alvarado street, and should be a sight to be remembered.

Due to the many out-of-town entries, the parade is expected to be one of the biggest and most beautiful ones seen in Monterey in many a year. The parade will be led by the Military Band from Fort Ord.

STANLEY PEDDER, the local attorney, is a Carmelight who has found his way to the Village from beginnings in London.

A gentle-spoken man who retains the clear speech of his native England, Pedder has, in his six years in Carmel, come to assume a good many community jobs. His time is generously given to the Sanitary District Board, to the Community Chest for which he acts as budget chairman and chairman of the Crosby Committee, and to the World Affairs Council, of which he is director, as well as to the Citizens' Committee recently formed to oppose the California Water Company's request for a rate increase on the Peninsula.

Raised in England, and schooled there, Pedder came to the United States in 1905 as a young certified public accountant. Practicing first in New York and then in San Francisco, he passed his bar exams in 1913 after several years of independent study. His first law practice was in San Francisco where he remained until he retired from active practice six years ago, when he and his wife, Mabel Pedder, decided to make Carmel, where they were frequent visitors, their home.

There are four Pedder children, John who is now an insurance and realty broker in Orinda, Constance (now Ferguson) who is living in Berkeley, Robert who is a partner in Pedder's old San Francisco law offices, and Richard who is an agronomist with the Spreckel's Company in Sacramento.

Residents of the Mission Tract, the Pedders are garden enthusiasts. They will, in four years, celebrate their Golden Wedding Anniversary. They are well content that the last six of these years have been spent in Carmel, and, to judge by Stanley Pedder's valuable contributions to the community, it is a mutual sentiment.

Hundreds of Big Corporations are working for me!

Even though there are 15 million people in this great nation who own common stocks, the myth still exists that buying part-ownership in American industry is only for the wealthy.

But . . . through Mutual Funds . . . people with a very modest surplus can have ownership in a great number of businesses and industries. They can have full-time professional investment management too.

With our compliments we'll gladly send you a folder telling the full story.

blooded animals already entered in the Monterey County Fair Horse Show opening next Thursday evening, Aug. 14, on the Fairgrounds Arena in Monterey, the most successful horse show in history loomed in the offing today.

Highlighting California's top County Fair Horse Show will be the nightly draft horse team competition with three of the Pacific Coast's five active eight-horse hitches striving for the blue ribbon. The Coberly-West entry of Shafter, piloted by veteran Wallace McCormick, will compete with Dave Richardson, driving for T. M. Parks of Buellton, and Harry Castagnasso, holding the reins of the Castagnasso & Sons of Sonoma entry.

The highly prized hunters and jumpers classes will be headed by the Barbara Worth Dodge Stables of Sacramento and will feature Shirley Hubble, Jessie Cavitt, and Dorothea Cavitt of Sacramento, as well as such other well known riders as Mildred Butler, Roseville; Mrs. T. G. Kenyon, Roseville; J. Windrum Smith, Piedmont; Miss Elsie Holt, Carmel Valley and the Carousel Ranch of Concord.

The always popular gaited classes will be paced by Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Angell of Bakersfield, the Wagon Wheel Ranch of Sonoma, the Maple Stables of Woodland, Mrs. Carroll Baird of Fresno, and the Happy Valley Farm of Woodside.

Hackney ponies of the first water will be on hand, including the entries of San Mateo's Concar Ranch, Bud Little of Sacramento, Janice Nock of San Rafael, and Lewis C. Criblez of Sacramento.

The Amateur Gardener

GARDENING FOR HEALTH AND HAPPINESS

By CHARLES W. DELANEY

If you wish to get the most out of your garden and have continuous blooms you must be systematic--frequent patrolling, picking off spent flowers, staking tumbled down stalks, and watching for insects, especially white fly and aphis. It is not necessary to learn the names of all insects; a multi-purpose spray and the use of snail bait is all that is required.

WATERING

Feel the soil. If it lacks moisture under the surface, then give it a thorough watering and a mulch of grass clippings, peat moss, compost, or barnyard fertilizer. These will conserve moisture and keep the root area from baking dry; and they keep the roots cool.

WEEDS AND GRASS

Keep weeds and grass from going to seed in the flower bed. They sprout as soon as the rainy season sets in and they overtake anything planted in the garden.

TRIMMING HEDGES

Privet, pittosporum, lugerrie, laurels, and other evergreen hedges should be trimmed as a final chore for the year--not later than September. Most hedges will leaf out better if trimmed so the base is wider than the top. If the leaves have turned brown and show signs of red spider mites, spray with Vapotone-XX. This is also useful for any of the evergreen shrubs.

ROSES

Roses should be given a treatment with a good balanced fertilizer so you can enjoy some fall blooms. This applies especially to the everblooming bush and climbers--Peace, Belle of Portugal, Texas Centennial, Edna Thomas, and Mme. Henri Guillot.

ROOT PRUNING

If your lilac, wisteria, and spireas have not bloomed well, you can improve them by root pruning. Dig a trench 12 to 14 inches from the center of the bush or vine. Cut off the roots that are exposed in the trench with well-rotted manure and compost. Where the roots were cut, new, small feeder roots will develop, and the fertilized filler will revitalize the lilac and wisteria.

Lilacs should not be watered very much now until the rains begin.

Some rose bushes that have not bloomed well could have root pruning, but this should not be done until the bush has become dormant. It is just as well not to do it until January.

PRUNING

I am timid to advise about pruning. There are so many "pruning happy" people. They slash away at trees and shrubs and simply murder them.

You can cut back any straggling branches to keep the bush in its natural shape, or the top branches may be cut back by one-half if they have grown too tall. But remember, any shrub that blooms in spring will have no flowers if those top branches are cut off.

Runners on wisteria and bougainvilleas should be trimmed so that five or six joints are left on each trailer. If it is cut close to the main stem, no flowers will form.

The average yardman (Otherwise called the gardener) does not understand the fundamental principle of pruning. He is apt to violate all the rules that nature has established in the plant. Whenever it is necessary to trim off a straggling branch, make the cut near a budding out area, never leave a stump which causes it to die back. This type of trimming develops rot which travels back into the branch and eventually kills the plant.

Just try to keep the shrub in a symmetrical shape, and avoid making round balls or square boxes of any shrub. Nature cannot be improved on in the graceful growth of trees and shrubs.

COMMUNITY CHEST SLOGAN CONTEST

Preliminary selection of prize winners in the slogan contest of the Community Chest was made Saturday (August 9) by the publicity committee from the almost 100 entries submitted. Three prizes are offered. Final selection of the first, second, and third winners will be made by public balloting at the Community Chest's booth at the County Fair.

Because two entrants submitted the same slogan, four will participate in the prize money offered. The slogan submitted by two entrants is: "If You Care You'll Share," sent in by Shirlee Stoddard of Monterey and Mrs. L. A. Hunter of Pacific Grove. The other slogans selected for final judgement are: "Help From All," by Mrs. George F. Cowley of Monterey, and "Give a Lift with Your Gift," by Mrs. George F. Cowley of Monterey, and "Give a Lift with Your Gift," by Mrs. M. W. Corrigan, Pacific Grove.

Members of the Chest's publicity committee who judged the contest are Robert Ross, Carmel, Daniel Kohn, Monterey, and Bert Berg, Seaside. All committee members expressed gratification at the wide interest taken in the contest and the number of entries submitted. This interest they see as convincing demonstration of the extent to which the work of the Chest, and its importance to the Peninsula, are understood.
